

MAJOR BULLETS FIRED BY MARIETTA ROUTS BURGLARS

Mrs. Fair Dodd's Alarm Results in the Capture of Alleged Turkey Thief by Captain Si Donaldson.

ROBBERIES CONTINUE DESPITE NEW PATROL

Supernumeraries Are Informed That Their Jobs May Be Made Permanent if They End Crime Wave.

Burglars were routed in Atlanta last night by citizens. Mrs. Fair Dodd, of No. 8 East Thirtieth street, taking a prominent part in the routing of one of the burglars in the act of burglarizing her chicken coop of four fine Christmas turkeys.

Mrs. Dodd had just retired, when she heard a commotion in the back yard. Arming herself with her husband's pistol, she opened the door, went out upon the back porch of her house and opened fire into the chicken coop of negro thieves. The negroes made a hasty retreat, carrying with them four turkeys.

Dodd did not cease firing until she had emptied the last cartridge of her revolver.

The pistol shots had awakened Captain Si Donaldson, former superintendent, out of the bounty convict, of No. 8 East Thirtieth street, and L. W. Haskin, of No. 7 East Thirtieth street, who armed themselves with pistols and began a hunt through the back alleys of the block for the burglars.

Negro Is Captured.

Captain Donaldson captured a negro on the alley, on East Thirtieth street, near No. 35. He forced the thief to turn over two fine turkeys he was carrying and surrender himself.

Assistant Chief E. L. Jett, with a posse of policemen, arrived from the police headquarters about this time, and the negro was overpowered by the posse. Jett and Captain Donaldson when they showed light upon the arrival of the police, the negroes made good their escape, carrying with them two turkeys and a small Christmas tree.

A real woman burglar was captured by other Atlanta citizens in an effort to break into the front porch of a residence at 417 Courtland street last night.

Awakened by a noise, Hugh Haskin secured his pistol and reached the front porch before the burglar noticed him. He covered her with the gun immediately, commanding her to hold up her hands. The alleged burglar proved to be a young woman, who was arrested with a knife, with which she was attempting to stab her captors.

ALEXANDER SCORES CHARGE OF CORSEY

Frank Attorney Leaves for Washington to Make Effort There to Secure Supreme Court Hearing.

On the eve of his departure for Washington, where he will put his appeal for the life of Leo Frank before the United States supreme court, Henry A. Alexander, assistant solicitor general, yesterday made the charge submitted to the United States court by Frank's lawyers on their last appeal.

Mr. Alexander stated that the justice who gave his opinion that he did not believe Frank had received due process of law because of the disclosure of the information that had been used in the first Frank retrial motion, and which had been certified to by Judge L. S. Roun, the trial judge, and the man who first retried Frank's appeal.

Mr. Alexander stated before Judge Newman, that the federal judge declined to certify to Frank's appeal, that it was possible that Judge Newman had been informed as to the exact facts of the case, and that he did not believe, as he later declared, that he had secured reports or information. He merely intimated that Frank's lawyers only presented their side of the case.

Attorney Alexander will reach Washington Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, and early that day will confer with Justice Lamar, presiding justice over the Georgia jurisdiction of the supreme court, in a last effort to reopen the case.

In event Judge Lamar, as in the last United States appeal, declines to consider the case, Mr. Alexander will appeal to other justices, and, failing in this, he will drop his plea to the entire supreme bench.

Supreme Court Procedure.

The first Frank appeal before the supreme court was when Attorney Alexander and People made a direct plea to the court for it to grant a writ of error—which had been refused by the state supreme court.

In the present case, Mr. Alexander will be asked to state the facts of the case which might be argued in the Washington tribunal. Just as they now are, Frank's attorneys were equipped with nothing more than the mere recitation of the facts of the case.

In event the supreme court decides to hear the present Frank appeal, it will be decided at that time, and it will be approximately two months, in which the court is allowed to return a decision lies within its own discretion.

CONCILIATION ACT CONSIDERED BY BOND ADVISORY BOARD MEETING TODAY

Advocates of the Proposed Election Are Confident That Necessary Steps Will Be Taken This Afternoon.

MAYSON MAKES DRAFT OF BOND ORDINANCE

Estimated Atlanta's School Property Is Worth $1,716,238, Which Is Much Less Than That of Many Cities.

The postponement of the meeting of council which was scheduled to have been held Monday afternoon again delayed action on the report of the bond issue committee which recommends a bond issue election of $2,000,000 to be held on March 1, for schools and other needed improvements.

Council met and adjourned out of respect to William D. Owens, brother of Alderman John S. Owens, but will meet again this afternoon for the transaction of city business, chief in importance being the report of the bond committee.

Advocates of the proposed bond issue for streets, sewerage, parks, schools and other improvements were more certain than ever on Monday that the council will adopt the report of the committee and pass the way for the 1915 election to work out all the details regarding the expenditure of the bond ordinance which will be presented to council Tuesday afternoon.

The ordinance merely authorizes council to call an election for the purpose of voting bonds.

World Election Effects.

It was without the provision of next year's council to amend the ordinance if it sees fit, and such action will be taken by the council after the election for a few days.

5 GEORGIAN BACK HOBSON RESOLUTION

Prohibition Measure, Voted On in House Today, Expected to Lack Necessary Two-Thirds Vote.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, December 21.—(Special)—Some students of the house will vote on whether or not the state shall have an opportunity to pass upon a national prohibition measure of the house today on the Hobson resolution which will get a majority vote, but fail of the requisite two-thirds.

Five Georgia members are supporting the resolution. The Georgia Representatives Frank P. Charles, H. C. Clegg, William Frank Howard, Dudley M. Wright and Thomas M. Ball.

The opponents are the state's right to vote upon the amendment, while the advocates treat it as a moral issue.

"I am, and have always been, a prohibitionist," said Representative Charles. "While on the one hand I am in favor of the prohibition law, more-over, I am in favor of a moral problem, and now that the issue is before the house, I shall vote for the resolution."

This proposal to amend the national constitution in the proper and orderly way.

Representative Hughes said that he felt that the state should have an opportunity to vote upon the amendment, whether the sale and manufacture for sale of liquor throughout the nation.

Georgia members received a large number of letters today from constituents in Georgia upon the resolution, and many of them would vote against the resolution.

Special Message to Congress.

Opponents of prohibition were certain to make a strong effort to amend the constitution, and to send the house of the house necessary to amend the constitution.

While all the world is awaiting the outcome of the battles in Poland and France, few details are being made known of the Russian public opinion. The Russian public opinion is not in the most recent Berlin bulletin, but the relative position of the opposing forces is not mentioned.

Miss Brown Entertains At Holiday Supper-Dance

A beautiful Christmas party last night was the buffet supper and dance given by Mr. and Mrs. George M. Brown for Miss Mary Brown, Miss Lawson Hines and Miss Rosalie Davis.

There were fifty guests, and the happiest hospitality made the evening memorably enjoyable.

The house was elaborately decorated in the holiday colors. Holly and mistletoe, poinsettias and red carnations were used in attractive arrangement, and the buffet table in the dining room was a glowing picture in red, its centerpiece of carnations. The food was brought in with red candles burning in them, the candles set in red candy roses, and in every detail of entertainment the holiday spirit and symbolism was carried out.

After supper there was a dance at the residence across the street owned by Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Evans.

There the holiday decorations were repeated, and five shining Christmas trees were a feature. Each tree was laden with favors, and these were drawn for partners in the dance. One tree was decorated with birds and animals, which were matched for partners.

In another tree gilt hearts, big and little, and gilt rings were the favors; poke bonnets and farmers' hats were numbered to correspond in a third tree. "Old gray bonnets" were quaint souvenirs for another dance, and the last was covered with red tulle, which held hearts and butterflies, the heart drawn by the lucky men and the but-terflies by those for whom there was no partner. An orchestra provided the music for dancing.

Miss May Brown wore a dainty dancing gown in yellow tulle. Miss Rosalie Davis costume was a Parisian model in white satin, the tulle tunic embroidered in gold beads and finished with ostrich feather bands. Miss Lawson Hines was gowned in ascoom tulle over flesh-colored satin, the grille of lace embroidered in iridescent.

THE WADE PLAN

Conceived with the best of motives and originally upon an attractive basis, the Wade cotton loan plan does not appear to offer the relief that was hoped for. Indeed, it is obvious that it is better to sell cotton than to hold it upon the terms of the plan.

It was originally projected that the farmer could borrow on a basis of 6 cents a pound from the $135,000,000 pool, at a 6 per cent interest. That would have been a plan offering measurable relief to the average farmer in need of credit. But, after many consultations, the plan now has gotten down to rock bottom basis, and it is very different from that at first contemplated.

As perfected and now available, no one can get relief from the Wade cotton pool except he hypothecates his cotton in 100-lb. lots. That takes out the average farmer, the man most in need of help, at the start.

Then, the basis of borrowing has been reduced from 6 to 5 cents a pound.

The rate of interest is 6 per cent, but there are overhead charges of 3 per cent. It is safe to add an incidental 1 per cent charge. That means a 10 per cent charge upon a 5 cents per pound borrowing basis.

And that is not to reckon with loss from deterioration.

The purpose of the loan is, of course, to enable the farmer to hold for a higher price. The question arises: Will any farmer, even the 100-lb. farmer, to speculate on a 10 per cent basis upon a possible rise of 3 or 5 cents, a rise that is problematical at best? Will it not pay him more assuredly, not the gamble less, if he sells his cotton outright at the prevailing market price of 7 to 7 1/2 cents? It is well to remember that even had the war not intervened, there would have been the depressing effect of a bumper crop, and a huge surplus carried over. By selling now he liquidates his debts, establishes his basis for the new year, and makes more than he would even if he could borrow from the Wade fund.

It is a simple business proposition. Which end is best—for the average farmer?

A CASE OF STAGE FRIGHT.

The Constitution publishes today an article by Herbert N. Casson, written for Associated Advertising, which we wish every business man in the United States could read and take to heart.

His keynote is: "What is the matter with the United States?" and he asks it from the vantage ground of shattered and demoralized Europe. He wants to know why we have not already taken advantage of and are not further preparing to take advantage of the huge commercial opportunities created by the folly of Europe; why our factories are not running full time; why our salesmen are not invading the European capitals; why our advertisers are lagard; why cotton is not being shipped; why, in a word, a whole nation seems blighted, dead and dumb to opportunities that may not arise again in all history.

Proverbially, the American business man is "on the job." Most certainly, he is not on the job, in the present instance. He seems to be stricken into stage fright, to have had his initiative and energy paralyzed.

Take the case of cotton. It has been declared non-contraband. All Europe, all the world, is hungry for it. Yet there is a scarcity of ships in which to carry cotton, and those that do carry it ask prices several thousand per cent above the ordinary tariff.

In the meantime, congress quibbles and split hairs over so reviving our shipping laws as to afford relief.

Every idle army transport, eating its head off at the public expense, ought to be put to work carrying cotton to the silent mills of Europe.

There is the market, eager, waiting. And for lack of resource in this country, cotton moves sluggishly and a huge profit this country might reap is withheld from it.

The same thing applies to other industries, steel, iron, manufactured goods to Europe, South America, the Orient. Is the American business man asleep? Or has he a plain, old-fashioned and indefensible case of stage fright?

It is time for business America to awake and vindicate its reputation for shrewdness. Fortunes are slipping away for lack of a little daring, a little energy!

NO CHRISTMAS TRUCE.

Industrious cross-examination probably would fail to disclose who is responsible for the failure to declare a Christmas truce in the war zone, such as was proposed from several sources. It is the same old story of evasion and "passing the buck" on all sides.

We had that spectacle as to the cause of an outbreak, but history is repeating itself with regard to the proposal to cease operations while the world celebrated the birth of Christ.

In the last analysis, the failure to stop fighting for a day or two makes little difference. The twentieth century, an alleged Christian century, or rather a century dominated by Christian influences, has already been made a travesty in these respects by the wholesale organized carnage on the other side of the water. The fact that this carnage continues on through the day that celebrates the coming of the Prince of Peace is a minor matter to the war-makers, and will not alter one jot or tittle the final indictment of our boasted Christianity.

So on Christmas day the white plains of France, and the sleety, frozen ground of Poland will still reverberate to the thud of artillery. The ambulances will still be at their sad work. Men will die in regiments and suffer in battalions, and millions, and the millions of homes already desolated will continue to be desolated.

It will be the anniversary of the birthday of Christ. But these facts matter little when the world is writhing in pain, and nations are at the throats of each other, and the millions of homes already desolated will continue to be desolated.

A Whirl with the Merry Season

The Merry Season

Praised be the Christmas season

Sure as it comes along I whistle away

Benjamin a merry throng

For a whirl with the Oh, it don't take long to see

When his soul is a bird that sings

If they've done I was born that way

Line out the hymn on a Christmas Day

Time flies. It was made for flying

The good Lord gave it wings

WAYCROSS ELKS MAKE REPLY TO A MINISTER

His Subject Being "Whitewash," Rev. Holcombe Attacks Order—The Reply.

Waycross, Ga., December 21.—(Special.)—Following a severe attack by Rev. H. R. Holcombe upon the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and other fraternal organizations, in a sermon delivered Sunday afternoon, the subject being "Whitewash," the Waycross lodge of Elks today issued a short but pronounced answer to the criticism of the Baptist minister.

It was charged that Elks and other fraternal organizations used this season of the year to apply their "whitewash" of benevolence and charity to cover their shortcomings and the real purpose of their existence. The minister said no man can be a loyal member of the Elks and at the same time a loyal follower of the Gospel. Members of the Waycross lodge of Elks claim the order is founded upon charity, and does more real charity, without ostentatious display, than any other organization in the world, in their answer to Rev. Holcombe, the Elks say:

"It is sufficient to say, in brief, our answer to any man who holds the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks responsible for the acts of individual members is expressed in the following of a noted governor, when taken to task by a member of the order, who was belonging to the Elks, he said, 'I have granted nearly one thousand pardons, while governor, and I want to say that out of the ten thousand convicted criminals with there were nine times as many as the Elks.'"

"We are not ashamed of our order and if it is accused of being a cover for collective and not individually, it will compare favorably with any organization in the world."

DR. CALLAWAY'S FUNERAL TO BE CONDUCTED TODAY

The funeral of Rev. John Sanders Callaway, one of the best known ministers in the state, who died Sunday at Carter's Grove, Ga., will be held this morning at 10 o'clock from the old Mercer church, under the leadership of A. Owens, of Humboldt, Tenn., conducting the services, in compliance with the request of Dr. Callaway. Interment will be in the Fennell cemetery.

He was one of the best loved men in Georgia. More than 100 couples in Atlanta alone were married by Dr. Callaway, and he perhaps baptized more people than any other minister in the state. He was an uncle of M. L. Brittain, state school commissioner, and of W. H. Brittain, president of the Georgia High school.

During the civil war he served as a member of Longwood's famous brigade. He was a professor at Mercer university when it was situated at Carter's Grove. At the time of his death he was pastor of the Mercer church, and was also pastor of the Carter's Grove church, the County Union, and the Bethel church, since his ordination, fifty years ago.

Surviving him are his wife and eight children, R. W. and J. R. Callaway, of Atlanta; B. B. and J. R. Callaway, of Bremen, Ga.; Mrs. J. F. Waldron, of Athens; Mrs. E. R. Brown, of Pennington, and Mrs. E. R. Brown, of Pennington, Ga., and also a number of relatives in Louisiana.

WAR MAKES TOBACCO POPULAR XMAS GIFT

The prominence given to tobacco in the last conflict has made it a popular gift for millions of men, the countless thousands of whom have been sent to the soldiers of all nations by their families and friends. This has made Christmas gifts of tobacco very popular. The one thing a man prizes above everything else, and that is to enjoy it. It will give him much heart on Christmas morning. Local dealers have a very popular tobacco for Christmas giving. It is the "Tuxedo" crystal glass humidor, with ribbon bow, all ready for sending. The "Tuxedo" humidor is a beautiful tree of father, brother, husband or son, and a practical humidor for the home. It is perfect condition, and used over a large number of ladies who are sending their stores the "Tuxedo" humidor to give the men folk for Christmas.

ATLANTANS SAVE MONEY FOR XMAS BY UNIQUE PLAN

One thousand Atlantans have just received their Christmas savings, ranging from $2 to $100 each, which they accumulated during the year for Christmas time under a unique saving plan of the Third National bank.

The savings amounted in all to $10,000, and only two accounts ran as high as $100. The checks were sent out by Assistant Cashier A. J. Hannel.

The money was saved specifically for the Christmas holiday season by depositing small amounts weekly or monthly, so small that they could hardly be missed by the depositors. In this way many have laid away a neat sum for Christmas who otherwise would probably not have had any "spending money."

FRANK HAWKINS, president of the Third National bank, whose unique Christmas savings plan has proved big success.

The savings amounted in all to $10,000, and only two accounts ran as high as $100. The checks were sent out by Assistant Cashier A. J. Hannel.

The money was saved specifically for the Christmas holiday season by depositing small amounts weekly or monthly, so small that they could hardly be missed by the depositors. In this way many have laid away a neat sum for Christmas who otherwise would probably not have had any "spending money."

WATCHING A GAME OF POKER COSTS YOUNG MEN FINES

Everybody knows that poker playing is an offense against the law, but Recorder Johnson maintains that even watching a game of poker on Sunday is a violation of the law.

As a result of this opinion, Recorder Johnson Monday afternoon fined five men $100 each and one man $15 for watching a game of poker on Sunday.

The men were fined for watching a game of poker on Sunday. The Recorder said that he had seen the men playing poker and did not know the first principles of the game.

"I had only dropped by the room to get a friend to go calling on some young ladies," said Mr. Fiddling.

"That is all right," replied Recorder Johnson.

STOCKS OF WHEAT GETTING SMALLER

This and Decreased Visible Supply Sent Wheat Prices

Up—Corn Also Closed at Advance.

Chicago, December 21.—Swift diminishing of stocks of wheat, both in the visible supply and in first hands, was the main factor in a wheat market that advanced with a whimper. Heavy put-takings followed, and the close was unsettled but 3/8c to 1/2c above Saturday night. Corn rose 1/8c to 3/8c, oats finished 1/4c to 1/2c in advance, and provisions with gains of 10 1/2 to 15c.

Higher quotations this season were reached on cash wheat and the December paper delivery. The advance in wheat was based less on steady, and at the top figures today that month was some 1 1/2 cents under the record of September 8, when it was at an excited temporary bulge to 1.25. At no other time was there any evidence of a record when the market was under the exporters seemed decidedly averse, for the time being at least, to follow the Corn sympathized with the strength of the union, but he was not completely handicapped by the fact that the steel on hand in Chicago had been greatly increased. He said that the steel industry's domestic visible supply total had also been swollen.

He said the steel industry was the victim of a local character. Many holders of steel stock had sold their shares at a loss.

Commission houses buying hoisted prices, he said, and the steel industry was protesting. This was especially true of the steel industry in the West, where there were accepting hoists freely at full prices despite large arrivals.
